Moore-Watts.

Should an objection be raised in the Constitutional Convention to the proposed change of the election of our judiciary by the Legislature instead of the people, we cite the conduct of Judges Moore and Watts as a burning shame on the department of government in which they hold high offices. If they are never impeached, in the name of heaven, alter a system by which the tricky demagogue is the most available man to wear the ermine in the districts to which we allude. Justice is trampled in the dust and the office of Judge disgraced.

W. W. Holden.

We must confess some little surprise at some of our State journals advocating the immediate removal of Governor Holden's disabilities, but perhaps it is magnanimity and that is always laudable. The democrats imposed these disabilities after ousting him from the office of Governor. Well, we do not know but that it is proper that they should be removed. Give the old man another chance, as some one says, for for he may yet make himself useful. We can remember when he was a great democratic power in our State—one of the ablest editors in the whole country—and the vilest sinner should have the privilege of returning.

The Journal.

Occasionally we hear men of respectable common sense charge that the call of a Convention was a blunder and speak ill of the Wilmington Journal in consequence. The Journal did what was right and did it with its conscience and country with distinguished ability. The present constitution is unsuited to our people, cumbersome, expensive and oppressive; it was therefore the duty of the press to convince the public and our Legislators of the necessity of amending it. Both did what it was their duty to do, and the only blunder was the delay, timidity and hesitation in calling the Convention, together with the apathy that was displayed by our friends after the call. Had every paper and every democrat done his duty in a manner like that of the Journal we would have swept the State. We honor the Journal for its course and all right minded men agree with us. It is a high-toned, conscientious and able newspaper and never takes a stand that is antagonistic to the best interests of the white people of North Carolina.

Judge Settle on Convention.

As Judge Settle, of the Supreme Court, has been given some notoriety recently by reason of his connection with the contested election case for Robeson county, it will perhaps be interesting to know some thing concerning his views on the subject of the approaching Convention. In conversation at Washington City last Saturday he talked pretty freely, if we are to believe the usually well-informed and careful correspondent of a Baltimore contemporary, he thinks that the question of control rests in the hands of Dr. Ransom, the independent delegate elected from Tyrrell, who has been a Republican. He says that as the Republicans are pledged to adjourn the Convention sine die immediately on its assembling, if they have the power, the question is as to whether the people of North Carolina shall have another Constitutional debate entirely upon one man. Judge Settle thinks the personal of the Convention is composed of the very best men of both parties. If the Democrats do succeed in securing a majority and proceed to the work of forming a new Constitution, Judge Settle states that he is satisfied that he will be nothing inserted detrimental to the interests of Republicans. With the parties so evenly balanced, any instrument likely to be framed must to a great extent meet with the concurrence of both, he thinks.

We get the above from the Wilmington Star.

When you see four little negroes carrying a white woman to a shady spot, you may know that they have what the wealth of Croesus cannot buy—perfect fidelity.

Will the Convention be Held or Adjourned.

The decision of this question is full of interest and full of importance to the people of North Carolina. We believe the Convention would not adjourn even if the Radicals had a majority of the delegates and nowhere have we seen better reasons given for such an opinion than in the following article taken from an esteemed contemporary the Shelby Aurora. Smile as we may at the idea that men can be influenced by such motives, it is none the less true that they are so influenced. The Aurora says:

'This question is now getting to be prominent. The Radicals, it is said, are pledged to adjourn immediately after organizing the Convention without attempting to do a particle of work. Would they do it if they had the requisite number? We think not. Among the Radical delegates, there are a good many young aspiring politicians, who long for a chance of displaying their powers in debate, and their statesman-like qualities in the work of remodeling the Constitution. Men who get into power don't easily give it up. These aspiring young statesmen desire the Convention to be held as a theatre on which they may exhibit their oratorical abilities. Why, how can these unknown Demosthenes—these gifted solons, ever show the brilliancy of their hidden talents unless the Convention throws open the field for their exhibition? Our readers may smile at this idea, but if they have studied human nature, they know that a thing called egotism is one of the strongest passions in man. Then again, there is a considerable sprinkling of negroes in the Radical delegation. These cornfield hands will get by serving in the Convention, from three to six dollars a day. They need the money. They are too lazy to work for it. Already, no doubt, they have counted up their per diem—how much money they can save in this way; what a nice, cosy little home they can buy with it; how Dina, the promising daughter, will now have plenty of money to buy fine dresses and jewelry.

Then there is Jake, our talented little son, who must be sent to college, and a thousand other wheels that must stand locked until the per diem comes. There is a wheel within a wheel, you know, and the most important matter with these needy sons of Africa, is the shower of gold that is to fall from the Convention tree. So we predict, that if it be true, as reported, that all the so-called Independent Democrats side with the Radicals in politics, and they have the power by one majority to adjourn the Convention without doing any business, yet they will not do it; they will find some reason for holding the session, and something will be done—but what this demon said not.

To Speak in Illinois at Last.

Hon. Jefferson Davis has accepted an invitation to deliver an address before the Knox County, Illinois, Agricultural Association next September. The people of that State, or at least a large majority of them, evidently wish to hear Mr. Davis on the great industrial questions of the day, and it would seem as not to be deterred by the howls of heartless demagogues. If the citizens of Knox county are practically unanimous in their desire to hear the great Confederate chieftain, we see no objection to his speaking to them. The probabilities are that his visit will be exceedingly useful to that section in a material point of view, while it cannot be doubted that any pacific utterances he may choose to make will assist in healing the differences that exist between the two sections.

The Autumn Trade.

Trade is looking up in New York according to the newspapers of that city. There are a good many Southern and Western merchants in the market, and the leading dry goods jobbers are busily engaged in forwarding well assorted stocks of merchandise to remote sections of the country. The Publishers says: 'The indications are that the demand for goods from Southern buyers will be larger than for several previous years, while the outlook in other respects is favorable to a more spirited general trade during the incoming month.'

De Prompt!

It is important that every Democrat be at his post at the very moment of the opening of the Convention. Absence would be criminal. Delay would be inexcusable. Most tremendous responsibilities hang upon every member. Be advised in time. The Republicans will be there, every man of them. Make no calculations upon their failure.

A word to the wise is sufficient.

The Right Spirit.

Says the Charlotte Observer: The Conservative majority in the convention which is to assemble in the city of Raleigh, on the 6th of next month, assures us that the Convention will undertake to remodel the Canby Constitution, and the questions most likely to arise are in what will the changes consist. Everybody is convinced of the fact that there are some changes necessary, but no one can assert positively what changes are likely to be made. We hope the Convention will act in no partisan sense, and whatever that party perfect will be done for the weal of the people of the whole State. We have had too much partisan feeling, bitterness and rancor in our legislative bodies since the war. True, so far as the Conservative party is concerned, whenever it has shown a partisan feeling, that feeling has generally arisen from a desire to benefit the people—all alike. It was by the exercise of partisan feeling, we confess, that in 1870 the people of the State in their majesty arose in their might and hurled the thieves, and then that sold doves in the temple, from power, but that course was necessary for the preservation of civil liberty and civil rights in North Carolina, and the ends attained justified the means. But we believe if the Convention will give us a Constitution suited to our wants, that it will be dawning of a new era of prosperity in our good old State, and if every delegate will lay aside his partisan feelings, and work only for the good of his old mother, the good work will have begun.

Remember the Radicals renew their bonds on the first Monday in September!

The Third Term 'Mummy'

The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin thinks that the third term session is so dead that 'A door nail is in a condition of frolicsome animation compared with it. It would be as easy to galvanize an Egyptian mummy back to life and to run it as a democratic candidate for the Presidency as to give this worsted piece of foolishness any new vitality.' The Evening Bulletin is a loyal journal, but has allowed its devotion to the administration to close its eyes to the sunlight. If the third term is dead why does everybody talk about it? If it is simply a 'mummy' why does President Grant's letter leave the door open for him to become again a candidate? Why has no convention pronounced absolutely against it? Why do not State conventions bring out their own candidates for the Presidency? Not a single republican leader has been nominated for the Presidency in any State, except General Hartranft in Pennsylvania, and that is admitted to have been an idle compliment. Unless the republican party and its leaders take definite ground against the third term by making one term a cardinal point in their platform the issue will be the dominant question in our politics, not only in this election, but in many elections yet to come.

What decent white man will insult his race by standing a radical's bond!

The Delegate from Jackson.

The Radicals have persistently claimed S. W. Spake, the Democrat elected to Convention from Jackson county. Mr. Spake has at last defined his position.

The Asheville Citizen publishes the following letter:

WESTER, N. C., Aug. 12, 1875.
Editor of the Citizen—Dear Sir:—The Pioneer of last week announced, that a 'meet and adjourn' man had been elected from Jackson county. Having been, myself, elected from Jackson, I take this method of correcting that misstatement. I am not in favor of the 'meet and adjourn' policy, and I have never, at any time, given utterance to any such sentiment. On the contrary I have equally and most emphatically and unreservedly declared myself in favor of the 'meet and adjourn' policy.

Yours very truly,
G. W. SEARCE

This settles the matter. Spake is with us as we have claimed herebefore. This gives us 59 Democrats. This leaves the Republicans with 58 regulars.

The two independents, Wilcox and Ransom, now hold the balance of power. The destinies of North Carolina lie in the palms of their hands. Let them, we entreat consider well before they lean to the side of the Republican party. Their position is one of great responsibility.—Sentinel.

Some of the leading New York papers are trying to write up Gov. Holden for the next Presidency of the United States; but they will be mistaken. That State has had three fair trials, and all of them failed. That is enough. The President must come from the northwest this time.

Lamer Privately.

L. Q. C. Lamar, recently renominated for Congress in Mississippi, and whose eulogium on Sumner will be memorable, has little fondness for society, no particle of wit in his composition, and is often deep in the sulks. Still it would be difficult to find his equal on the stump or in debate. His friends say there is a quality about him which effectually repels all undue influences.

Mr. Raster of the Chicago States Zeitung announces that paper will support Grant on a hard-money platform against any candidate on a rag-money platform. If there are two hard-money candidates they will support the one opposing the Republican party.

Five Republican journals to Mr. Raster's one would be found to endorse Hendricks or Allen on a greenback platform. The West, the South, and Pennsylvania would combine to elect such a nominee. As to Grant, let the Radicals fall back upon him, as they doubtless will, and such a rousing cry for reform and no bayonets as would be raised was never dreamed of in the philosophy of Wall street and Long Branch.

Hon. Jefferson Davis was recently invited to deliver an address before an agricultural society in Illinois whereupon the Grand Army of the Republic, which is but an organized band of office-seekers, raised a great hue and cry and said, 'Oh! no, that will never do.' Mr. Davis at first accepted the invitation but hearing of the opposition he promptly withdrew his acceptance. Whatever the miserable, carping crew of army followers say cannot at all affect President Davis who is as far above them in every attribute of manhood as the distance from pole to pole.

There was much excitement in Washington and Jefferson counties, in Georgia, on Wednesday last, on account of a reported attempt by the negroes at insurrection. Eighty arrests were made, and the white military companies in these counties ordered to report to the sheriff. The prisoners were all lodged in jail.

The alleged plot contemplated a massacre of the whites on the 20th instant. It is thought now there will be no further trouble, though details are meagre and indefinite.

George Washington couldn't tell a lie, and that's what ails the average Vicksburg boy. The other day, when one of them accidentally broke a pane of glass in a store window, it was touching to see him walk bravely in the store and up to the merchant, and says: 'Mr. Blank, I broke a pane of glass in the window there, and you can charge it to the old man's account! Put it down as a box matches, and he'll never know the difference!'

The office of the Boston Post is located on the spot where Benjamin Franklin was born, on Milk street. Hence the cream of that journal's jokes, and the electric fire in its editorials.

The attempt of the Grant Radicals to make political capital by a crusade against the Catholic church, has proved a dead failure.

A loving runaway couple were married the other day on a Philadelphia and Erie Railroad train, that was going at the rate of forty miles an hour. The bridegroom was the conductor, and his name matched his nature—Trump.—New York Star.

Gertrude Jackson, of Mississippi, comes as near being the fool-killer as anybody. She smiled equally on four admirers, and each rose thirsting for the others' gore. Their thirst was satisfied all around, and now Miss Jackson smiles upon upon a fifth.

Capt. Plato Durham's majority in Cleveland was 666. The whole vote was only 880, so the Radical candidate, Law son Eaves, was not expected to get a hundred votes, and did get only 111. It's no use for anybody to try to beat Plato Durham in Cleveland.

Unity, harmony, thorough concert of action will be necessary in the Democratic ranks in the Convention. The two parties will be about evenly matched in numbers; it will be the struggle of two giants.

An exchange, alluding to the Radical pledges to adjourn if they have a majority in the Convention asks—'Will the Radicals keep their word? We beg to submit that they had better keep it as it is of no value to any decent person. If they don't keep it, it will be the first thing they voluntarily let go.—Home.

Mr. Beecher preached a characteristic discourse under canvas to an immense multitude at the Twin Mountain House Sunday. Regeneration was the distinguished pastor's theme, and in the course of his sermon he developed the idea which just now is at the bottom of his heart. A happy household he described as a human heaven, and throughout his discourse he uttered thoughts which could have been drawn from his recent unhappy experiences.

Writing on politics in 1830, Daniel Webster said: 'For my part, though I like investigations of political questions, I give up what is called the science of political economy.' There is no such science. There are no rules on the subject so fixed and invariable as that their aggregate constitutes a science. I believe I have recently run over twenty volumes from Adam Smith to Professor Dew, of Virginia, and from the whole, if I were to pick out with one hand all the mere truisms, and with the other all the doubtful propositions, little would be left.'
